

The Honors Reading Class at SAGE Academy was given this assignment:

“Life forms (aliens) have been discovered on another planet and have the ability to communicate with us. In exactly twenty-five words, explain our world to them.”

Each student wrote their own response, then read and discussed with the whole class how they prioritized and selected what they chose to communicate.

Following that, the class worked to collectively create a message of twenty-five words based on synthesizing the significant points of each individual message.

Below is the message collectively derived from this assignment:

‘BITTERSWEET’

*“In a diverse world full of endless possibilities, inebriated societies and unfair distribution;
we are slowly striving toward morality
but we are not ready yet.”*
